WHO ARE YOU?

College is a great opportunity to develop your sense of self and figure out who you want to be during your time here. Listed are some tips on how to cultivate your sense of self here on campus:

- Explore – try new clubs, classes, and activities to see what excites you.
- Reflect – journaling or even voice notes can help you notice your growth and values.
- Set boundaries – knowing what drains you vs. energizes you helps define who you are.
- Build your circle wisely – surround yourself with people who uplift and challenge you.
- Give yourself grace – your sense of self is something you build, not something you need to have figured out right away.
- Stay curious – follow what genuinely sparks your interest, even if it's different from what others expect.
